PRICE, FIVE CENTS

Schools Stay Shut Due to New Cases

Eight Paralysis Victims Added to Main Line Total Dur- ing Past Week

URGE FURTHER CAUTION

Nine new cases of infantile paralysis were reported during the week ending September 14 for Lower Merion and Radnor Townships and the Borough of Narberth. No new cases were reported in Haverford Township.

No deaths were reported. Three cases were reported in Lower Merion as follows:

Constance Glynn, 10 years, 105 Simpson road, Ardmore; Allen P. Cawl, 14 years, Ithan avenue, Rosemont, and Robert Ritchings, 12 years, 32 Chatham road, Ardmore.

Five new cases were reported in Radnor Township as follows:

Mrs. H. L. Acomb, 502 Beechtree lane, Wayne; Stannard Funsten, Jr., 6 years, Garrett avenue, Garrett Hill; Chester Robinson, 18 years, 22 Aberdeen Terrace, St. Davids; Jane Miel, 2 years, 514 Beechtree lane, Wayne, and Robert McQuinn, 7 years, Drexel Estate, Bryn Mawr.

One new case was reported in the Borough of Narberth as follows: June Cederstrom, 9 years, 840 Montgomery avenue, Narberth.

Since August first 45 cases of infantile paralysis have been reported in Lower Merion, Radnor and Haverford Townships and the Narberth Borough. Three deaths have occurred.

For these sections three more cases were reported for the week ending September 14, as compared to the week ending September 7.

The largest number of cases have developed in Ardmore, where twelve cases have been reported. Bryn Mawr and Narberth each have five cases and Wynnewood four.

Township Ban Still On

Opening of schools may be deferred until the first of October, owing to the continued development of infantile paralysis cases in Main Line sections.

Marvin E. Reynolds, health officer of Lower Merion Township, said yesterday that the change in the development of new cases was not sufficient to lift restrictions that had been placed on the congregating of children in schools, theatres, churches, playgrounds and other places. Juniors to Combine in Large Card Party

Members of the Junior Woman's Club, of Ardmore, Narberth and Bala-Cynwyd, are assisting with a large card party to be given Saturday afternoon, September 24, at two o'clock at the Valley Forge Hotel, Norristown. Proceeds will be for the Junior Scholarship Fund at the Royer Greaves school at King of Prussia. Tickets may be purchased from the presidents of Junior Clubs or from Mrs. S. Louis Cornish, of Collegeville, chairman of Montgomery County Juniors. The tickets are 50 cents, which sum includes prizes, refreshments and parking. Juniors of the Bala-Cynwyd club, please call Mrs. Albert Weiden-saul, on Bala avenue.

Borough Office Valuable Information Bureau for All Citizens of Narberth

Every day in many homes in any community the size of Narberth information is urgently needed on some point or another which, though seemingly trifling from a community point of view, is at that moment highly important to the person who needs it, and if such information can be freely, accurately and courteously supplied through an office maintained at the public expense, and at no extra cost, then a valuable extra service is being extended to the citizens for the taxes that they pay. That is exactly what has developed here in Narberth, where the Borough office in the fire station, which is presided over by George B. Suplee, the Borough superintendent, and Mrs. Ruth W. Grace, the Borough clerical assistant, are constantly answering questions on all sorts of subjects by telephone and to personal callers. The fact that this service

Narberth Again Tops Local Baseball World

Narberth was crowned champions of the Main Line League last Sunday as a result of Upper Darby's defeat at the hands of the Bryn Mawr Chocetaws, and Manager Gene Davis, of the home team, is receiving congratulations from the happy fans.

This is the third season Gene has led his club to the title out of four tries. Last year the Davismen clinched the second-half crown, then lost to Paoli, first-half winner, in the play-off series.

In order to tie Narberth and make a play-off necessary for the latter-half laurels, Upper Darby had to defeat Paoli on Saturday and the Tribe the following day. Eddie Hare's boys got past the first by downing the Umbachmen 3-2 in a thriller, but fell before Bryn Mawr by a 6-2 count, giving the annual flag to Gene Davis' huskies.

Narberth Drops One in Non-League Game

Bacharach Giants Score 6-2 Win in Listless Contest Last Saturday

CARROLL TOPS HITTING

By JOHN MULLIGAN
The fast-stepping Narberth outfit enjoyed a holiday from Main Line League competition last Saturday when Darby forfeited in the final scheduled game and the Davismen played host to the Bacharach Giants instead.

The colored aggregation finally walked off the diamond with a 6-2 victory wrapped up neatly, but nobody seemed to care much about that fact.

When a person hies himself off for a holiday his usual inclination is to take everything as easily as possible, his thoughts only on plans to make life drift on in the sweetest channels, and so it seemed to be with Gene Davis' boys in their little get-together with the Giants. In other words, victory seemed only secondary to them and thus a conquest for the invaders was made easy.

Old-Timers Lose; Coal Fund Gains

Narberth's Current Main Line Championship Nine Wins by 9-3 Score

Fred Walzer staged his show at the Playground Wednesday night, the promised ball game between Narberth and a club composed of Old Timers, who starred in the loop years and years ago, huh.

Well, there was the usual result as far as the score goes; the youngsters trimmed the vets, 9-3, but while they were doing it Charley Harnden and his little helpers filtered through the overflowing crowd and collected over 90 of those green things so popular during these depression days, so the coal fund's batting average took a decided step in the right direction.

Miss Jean Shiley was on hand as honored guest and between the third and fourth innings was introduced to the crowd and presented with a large box of roses. Fletcher Stites did the introducing in his usual stirring manner and Jean graciously accepted the beautiful flowers, after which she settled down in the grandstand to a busy evening signing autographs.

Incidentally, Flick Stites was the big star of the game. He had one hit to his credit and accepted four chances flawlessly, throwing out his man at first with rifle-throws. In the fourth inning he completed a fine pick-up-catch of George Babb's hopper and retired him at first with a lightning-like heave.

Score by innings:
Narberth 0 0 3 0 0 6 x-9

Christine Mahl to Lead Narberth Girl Scouts

Christine Mahl, of Narbrook Park, has been appointed Captain of the Narberth Girl Scouts, Troop No. 8. She replaces Mrs. B. H. Crowell, of Ardmore.

Captain Mahl is 21 years old and is a Golden Eaglet Scout. She has had eight years in camp, 3 at Andre, 2 at Macy, 1 at Tweedale, 1 at Tall Trees and 1 at Wakoda. For three years she has taken the Girl Scout Leader Training Course at Camp Macy and Oberlin College. She has also been swimming coach at Oberlin College for three years. Captain Mahl will enter the University of Pennsylvania this Fall.

The Girl Scouts will hold their meetings on the first Tuesday following the lifting of the quarantine against Infantile Paralysis. This year the Scouts intend to have a great many outdoor activities and a much livelier troop than formerly. This will be an open meeting, so that new members can come in. There will be two more open meetings. Mary Dunlap, of Dudley avenue, is the lieutenant of Troop No. 8.

Bridge Wives Elect

The wives of the members of the Narberth Bridge Club held an organization meeting in the Club Rooms in Elm Hall on Friday, when the following were elected officers: President, Mrs. Horace I. McConnell; vice-president, Mrs. E. C. Griswold; secretary, Mrs. H. W. Herlong, and treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Baker.

All members are earnestly urged to attend the business meeting which will be held at two o'clock this Friday in the Club Rooms in Elm Hall.

Narberth Legion Member Describes Struggles of German People Against Taxes—Quotes Beer, as Big Revenue Source

A fascinating account of some of the incidents of the European study trip of Frank A. Schrepfer has been received in a letter to the Editor of "Our Town." Mr. Schrepfer is Assistant Professor of Landscape Architecture at Penn and active in many local affairs.

Dear Bob:

The above represents our "permanent" address in Germany, and I am hoping that "Our Town" will reach us even more promptly than it has via London. The last issue reached us in exactly two weeks from date of publication. I am reminded by my wife that our subscription must be about run out. If you will get in touch with Roland Fleer, he may dig up the price of a renewal. We do not want to be without it. A batch of issues caught up with us in the Bavarian Tyrol. As it had been rafting for three days, it was like a ray of sunshine to know, for sure, that the Bridge Club was having tournaments, and that Gene Davis was still producing a winning organization. To say nothing of the comfort of knowing that sugar and coffee can still be had at less than a king's ransom! At from $1.25-$1.75 per pound, coffee in Germany is drinkable, but not enjoyable.

We have covered plenty of ground, and thoroughly, since our arrival. We spent about a week in Belgium, which was esthetically very satisfying, with

School Term May be Extended Next Spring

Attendance days lost because of the postponement of opening Lower Merion schools will have to be made up later in the school year.

S. Edgar Downs, superintendent of Township schools, told members of the Lower Merion School Board Wednesday night that 180 days of actual teaching was required, if possible, prior to July 1, 1933. The Lower Merion schedule now calls for 181 teaching days. Superintendent Downs said readjustments in the schedule would be necessary, so as to shorten vacations or extend the term in Spring to complete the required work.

Progress was reported on the new Administration building by Superintendent Downs, although it seems improbable, he said, that the building would be ready for occupancy before October 15.

Repairs undertaken in Township schools during the summer have been completed with the exception of plaster work at the Bryn Mawr School. Casper Bongiovanni was authorized to make the necessary repairs at a cost of $35. The purchase of a vacuum cleaner from Joseph W. Shank for $69.75 was ordered.

"Three Wise Fools" to be First Local Production

The Narberth Players held a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace I. McConnell, on Merion avenue, on Tuesday evening, when the next play, which will be produced early in November, "The Three Wise Fools," was selected. The cast for the play will shortly be announced. The members also discussed a number of plays to be produced during the current season.

This year the club decided on a new plan of ticket selling and for a full membership card each person will be given two tickets for every performance, and will be entitled to all the privileges of the club.

Editor Leaves Hospital

Robert Moore Cameron, editor of Narberth and Lower Merion community newspapers, left Bryn Mawr Hospital yesterday for the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Delancey Cameron, Montgomery avenue, Narberth. Cameron received a broken nose and other head injuries last Wednesday when his machine was struck by that driven by Charles Ross, of South Merion avenue, Bryn Mawr.

You probably know all about the troubles they are having with strikes and disorders. We had some interesting and amusing experiences. At the dock, it cost me five francs, Belgique, to get a customs inspector to change his mind and decide that my movie camera was not, after all, a machine.

Mulieres Plan Card Party and Dance Series

The Board of Directors of the Mulieres of the Narberth Fire Company held a meeting on Tuesday morning at the home of the president, Mrs. Eberhardt Mueller on Essex avenue, when the final arrangements for the card party to be held on Tuesday afternoon, September 20, at the home of Mrs. Mueller were made. The tickets for the card party are 50 cents and there will be a prize for each table and homemade cakes. The time is two o'clock.

The party is given to raise funds to pay off debts incurred at the time of the Carnival last Fall. A Board meeting will also be held next Tuesday at one o'clock, preceding the card party, to make final arrangements for the proposed series of dances to be held in Elm Hall for the benefit of the Fire Company this season. The first one will be held on Friday, October 28, and will be a Masquerade Dance, for old, medium and young. The committee in charge of the dances are Mrs. Eberhardt Mueller, Mrs. George Gilpin, Jr., Mrs. John Burrell, Mrs. E. S. Haist, Mrs. C. C. Tyson and Mrs. Charles E. Harnden. The names of the patronesses will be announced later. These dances will be open to the public and there will be at least two hostesses at every dance.

Democratic Meeting, Speech by Ditter and Surrender of Boyd Start Congress Campaign

Proof that the dog days are past is found in the beginning of serious political activity in Montgomery County during the past week. The contestants for the richest plum—Congressman from this district—have been making news.

The opening guns of the Democratic campaign, with special emphasis on the wet side of the question, were fired last Saturday at a large gathering at the Penlyn home of R. Sturgis Ingersoll. A number of high-ups in the party spoke, with John M. Hemphill as the lead-off man on the liquor topic.

Mr. Hemphill claimed a loss of $2,000,000,000 annually due to Prohibition, and made a plea for the return of liquor control to the States. Other speakers were Mr. Ingersoll and his brother, John Ingersoll; Charles D. McAvoy, Mrs. Graham Dougherty,

Bank Asks Parking Space for Patrons

Metzger Objects to Drastic Rules on New Part of Haverford Ave.

WORK OUT COMPROMISE

Routine business only came before the regular monthly meetings of Council last Friday and Monday evenings, with the exception of a decision in reference to the control of parking on the recently improved section of Haverford avenue, near the Narberth National Bank. Since the improved section on Haverford avenue has been opened for traffic, it has been observed that parking on both sides of that street near the bank building was causing a congestion, which usually made it possible for only one car to get through there at a time. Before that section of the street was improved unrestricted parking was permitted at that place.

It was therefore a decision of the Highway Department, in connection with the completion of that street, to put down "No Parking" signs on both sides of the street by the bank building. The street at that point is only 18 feet wide, but further west it is considerably wider. As soon as the Borough laborers started to put down the "No Parking" signs Carl B. Metzger, president of the bank, objected and appealed to the Burgess, who instructed the laborers to interrupt that work until the matter could be brought before Council on Friday evening. That was done and Mr. Metzger appeared before that meeting of Council to argue in favor of parking at that point.

Mr. Metzger said that it would interfere with the business of the bank if parking was restricted at that point, and anyway it was his opinion that it might be a good idea to bottle up that end of the street with parking in order to prevent such unrestricted use of it as to cause speeding along it. He requested that notices should be put along the north side of that street next to the bank building, reading "Bank Parking," which would indicate that parking was to be permitted there for the exclusive use of patrons of the bank.

Councilman Wood defended the decision not to permit parking at that point at all; and said that it would not seem to be consistent to get the County to spend several thousand dollars opening a street and then to restrict the use of it by promiscuous parking. He told Mr. Metzger that

Rotary Governor Visits Clubs of Main Line

Rotary clubs of the Main Line are receiving their annual visits from the governor of the Fiftieth District, C. Edgar Dreher, of Atlantic City.

Last Thursday noon Mr. Dreher addressed the Ardmore club, urging the members to devote themselves to vocational service among the community's various business groups. At the Paoli-Berwyn-Malvern club Thursday evening he spoke on the subject of "The Guiding Principles of Rotary."

Next Tuesday noon Mr. Dreher will make his official visit to the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth club, when it meets at the Overbrook Golf Club.

Mr. Pendleton, Democratic candidate for Congress, was emphatic in his views on Prohibition. "I have opposed the Eighteenth Amendment since the beginning; I oppose it now; and were all the voters in Montgomery County in favor of that Amendment, I would still oppose it."

"I pledge my word to you that, if elected, I will dedicate myself to repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, and I will not rest until it is accomplished. I will vote only for absolute repeal and will oppose any measure which falls short of that end."

A Good Start!

The Main Line Safety Campaign opened last week to the sound of seven auto crashes, which injured as many people and killed three. Thus to the tune of blood and destruction the need of such a campaign has been quickly shown.

In Lower Merion Township alone, in the seven months from January 1 to August 1, 1932, automobile accidents have averaged 53 per month, resulting in fatalities at the rate of 1 per month. These accidents do not include the many not reported to police.

Radnor and Haverford Townships report similar experiences according to their respective populations. And Devon, Berwyn, Paoli and Malvern have suffered in the same proportions. The motor law that will stop death by accident has not and never will be devised; but experience in other parts of the country has shown that where there is an organized effort to educate drivers and pedestrians along the lines of safety there is a marked reduction of accidents.

In the hope that fewer marks will stand against the Main Line's accident record, these two pledges should be memorized by all who use the public highways:

The pedestrians pledge:
Believing that the appalling number of automobile accidents resulting in injuries or loss of life, are largely the result or carelessness and reckless indifference on the part of those of us who must walk along and across streets, and

Believing that my example and practice will help to reduce this enormous loss and suffering by reducing the number of preventable accidents.

1—I promise to use the utmost care at all times while walking along and across streets.

2—to give full respect to all traffic laws and regulations.

3—to have regard for and not violate the rights of others who are lawfully using the public highways.

4—to observe at all times, the courtesies required by good manners and good citizenship.

The drivers' pledge:
Believing that the appalling number of automobile accidents, resulting in injuries or loss of life, are largely the result of careless driving and reckless indifference to the rights of others, and

Believing that my example and practice will help to reduce this enormous loss and suffering by reducing the number of preventable accidents.

1—I promise to operate my motor car in a safe and careful manner.

2—to give full respect to all traffic laws and regulations.

3—to have regard for and not violate the rights of others who are lawfully using the public highways.

4—to observe at all times, the courtesies required by good manners and good citizenship.

It is the duty of every man, woman and child to join hands in a real organized effort to control the accident situation on the Main Line. A plan of action has been devised, and by its earnest application reduction of motor accidents must result. The plan was adopted speak French and English, "very well, indeed, sir!" I have been of the opinion that I knew French after a fashion at least, and reasonably sure I could speak English. When we got to our room in Antwerp, we found that the very large room was filled to overflowing with an assortment of useless tables and uncomfortable chairs. In order to make gangway for our youngsters, I called the house man, and requested that he remove at least one table and two chairs. This in very good French. He made all the signs and comments that indicated comprehension and agreement. However, I am of a suspicious nature, so on going downstairs, I approached an "English spoken here" type of manager, and repeated the request, in English. Whereupon we departed for a stroll in the very interesting zoo. Imagine our consternation when we returned to our room to find that another table and two chairs had been added to the mess. At times like this, a college education is a great help! Frieda and I carried the excess furniture into the hall, and when the house man appeared I made an expansive gesture and told him, this time in American, "Take this junk to hell out of here." He did.

From Antwerp we flew to Mannheim, Germany. Total flying time two and a half hours. Train time, approximately fourteen hours, including a change of trains in Frankfurt at midnight. One interesting feature of the trip was that it cost two hundred francs less to fly than for rail fare. The route was over Cologne, Frankfurt, and Daemstadt. From the air, the castles along the Rhine are much less impressive and romantic than from the ground. The Luft Hansa use gigantic transport planes that are relatively quiet and comfortable.

Visit the Alps

We spent five or six weeks traveling through Southern Germany, Austria and Northern Italy. The Bavarian Alps are very impressive. While in Mittenwald, we were witness to an interesting but sad spectacle. Two young men of the town had been killed in an attempt to climb the north side of Mont Blanc. The bodies reached the village late at night, and a torch procession, consisting of the young men of the town, in the full native costume, short leather pants, embroidered vests, green felt hats trimmed with eagle feather and chamomile's beads, went to meet the car containing the caskets. The town is nestled at the foot of the Karwengle, a magnificent mountain that rises very abruptly to a height of something over ten thousand feet. It was very stirring. I managed to climb the Karwengle, which is a tame sort of mountain for climbing.

The high spot of our stay there was really the quarters we had in the hotel. It was a suite consisting of an immense living and dining room, one very large and one smaller bedroom, and bath. The furnishings were sumptuous. We were told that the suite was occupied in the old days by the Duke when he came there to hunt. Herr Krupp, of Essen, also used the rooms. All this magnificence, including ancient history, cost seven dollars a day, including meals. Strangely enough, it was the only place we have found to be even relatively cheap. Germany is so desperately poor, and prices are relatively high. The answer is always taxes. What was formerly a large and prosperous middle class has been wiped out of existence by the inflation of some years ago, and the ruin is being completed rapidly by the insane taxes that are imposed.

Taxes and the Dole

Travelers on tours, staying in the first class hotels in the large cities and resorts, unquestionably remain unaware of the true state of affairs. The Government dole system inaugurated by the Social Democrats, is the ruin of the country. However small the amount, it breeds bad feelings, permanent pensions for those who prefer a very little for no work, to work for very little pay. There is now a growing demand that the Government require some form of work in exchange for the dole. To keep up the payments to foreign countries, to the unemployed, the host of officials, active and retired, subsidies to various industries, and to the eastern provinces separated by the Polish corridor, the loans to farmers and estate holders on the Polish and Czech borders, everything and everybody is taxed as the proper plan of campaign to be used by the 113 Kiwanis Clubs of Pennsylvania, and, in substance, will be followed by many other organizations sponsoring safety.

ed to death. I have been told in detail, that for every dollar that a German spends he is spending sixty cents in taxes. What these people would do without the revenue derived from beer alone is a staggering question.

Good Beer—Six Cents

Excellent beer is sold for about six cents a pint in the larger cities. The manager of a large hotel in Mannheim assured me that the same beer could be sold at a profit for two cents a pint, without the taxes, direct and indirect. Beer revenue is undoubtedly the mainstay of the Government as to steady and dependable income. I have read and heard statements that there is no real poverty in Germany, that the people sit all night in the cafes drinking beer. The sad fact is that that is all they can do. Even inexpensive movies are out of the question for those who are working. (The unemployed are given passes for about one-third the regular price, with the result that they can afford to go, while those who work cannot!) For the price of a glass of beer, however, it is possible to sit for hours and listen to a concert. And any German would rather listen to a concert, even a mediocre one, than sleep, or eat. Six cents or less for beer and music is after all a very modest price to pay, even for people in desperate need of relaxation. It is amazing how lit-

Shreds & Patches

Spy

Last week the readers of this column were informed of the invasion of The Vagrant's yard by the wild things, of the first armed engagement in which The Vagrant was ignominiously driven from the field, even though his attack had cost the invaders the loss of one wasp and one cherry sapling. Profiting by the extra-long Labor Day week-end The Vagrant decided to renew the attack, to execute a flanking movement on that portion of the line which was not held by the wasps. As he outlined this plan to La Vagrante over their breakfast on the porch, suddenly he saw a yellow-jacket boldly sipping an egg fragment near his plate, and he should have known then that his plans were overheard. He brushed the wasp aside and went on with his eating and plotting, and that wasp, suspiciously unwasplike, tamely flew away with no show of temper, no offer of single combat. When wasps act like house flies, one should be on his guard.

Snakes

On the next morning the flank attack was inaugurated, as planned. The Vagrant remained discreetly in the background, but sent forward to the line of battle an unsuspicious hireling, a competent man who first saw the sun on Erin's isle, whence have come through all the ages strong and warlike men ready and eager to take a front-line position in any man's fight, public or private. Mightily he thrust about him with pick-axe, spade and clippers. The invading weeds and saplings fell in great numbers before his sturdy strokes. But suddenly he paused, turned his back to the enemy and retreated to the open lawn, beating the ground as he ran. The yellow-jacket had reported; the enemy was prepared and had sent against him a snake, which he now pursued. He caught and killed it. He said that it was a garter snake, but how he, a native of the island that St. Patrick purged of all such vermin centuries ago, should know one snake from another, and call it by name, was more than The Vagrant could fathom. Anyway, a snake it unmistakably was, stretched out there with battered head and wriggling tail that would not die until sundown. Soon after another snake, exactly like the first one, was discovered, dispatched and laid out on the grass beside his brother. In the face of this truthful narrative of the recent happenings in a suburban house lot, who can deny The Vagrant's theory that nature is never tamed and that wild life always surrounds and invades human home sites, lurking along the edges of lawn and shrubbery, always wishing and intending to be wilder?

Feminine Fears

It would have seemed to any detached observer that La Vagrante had viewed with more complacency a stinging wasp on The Vagrant's wrist during the first engagement than she did the semi-corpses of the two snakes stretched out harmless on the grass. She shuddered and squirmed and when The Vagrant said that their markings indicated immaturity and that they had probably hatched from the egg only this past spring, she cast anxious eyes toward the place whence they had come and quite logically argued that young snakes do not come into the world sans parents. "Goodness!" she said, "here I have been working in that garden all summer, and a whole family of snakes was probably there all the time! Where are the old ones? Do you suppose these are all of the young?" And many other questions as to the normal number of snakes which are incubated at the same time.

Eve and Adam

The Vagrant gave ample assurances that such snakes are harmless and really pretty; that he had often handled them and that they were as valuable to have in a garden as toads since they lived on insects and grubs. But La Vagrante would not be appeased and retreated to the porch, where sometime later The Vagrant found that she, true daughter of Eve, was restoring her spirits by eating an apple. "There's more in this than meets the eye," thought he, "if this is the garden of Eden, then I am Adam, and, if I am Adam, then I am going to see to it that human history is quite a different story from now on than that which was originated by my fatuous predecessor and namesake; for instance, I'll start on 'Eve' there—women have had the upper hand too long—I'll make her—"

CORDWOOD

Luxury or Necessity?

In winter, with a furnace fire to keep us warm, cord-wood to burn in the open fire-place might be called a luxury. But in the Fall, when we commandeer the fire-place to "take off the chill," then cord-wood is surely a necessity. Order some, before the rush...

le these people require to derive a great amount of pleasure. They are passionately devoted to the beauties of nature, because they are free! Any bit of beauty, a sunset, even a flock of birds on the wing, will attract groups of delighted spectators. Saturday brings an almost universal exodus from cities and towns. The roads, rivers and woods are alive with hikers and cyclists. Automobiles are a fabulous luxury, with the tax on the tiny little D. K. W. and B. M. W. cars as much as a hundred dollars a year. Gasoline is sold by the quart at a price that would discourage even a Ford owner.

Taxes, taxes, taxes. That is the incessant refrain. Governmental, state, municipal, head taxes, special taxes, assessments, income, property, building, occupational, bachelor, and special food and drink taxes! Some cities tax the sale of coffee and tea in restaurants. Most of them except milk as necessary to life. I was shown one property in Heidelberg, on which the special tax (a general tax in addition to all regular and special taxes) amounted last year to twice the amount of the combined total taxes on the same property in 1920.

Shabby clothing is fashionable, and that is absolutely true, not of the "poor people," as we use the term, but of the professional and business classes as well. It is really depressing. How long and why they stand for it, is beyond me. I can't make up my mind as to whether they are super patriots or super fools. That the Communist flag is seen all over, and that the Hitler flag floats from houses in all parts of Germany is not a source of surprise. These movements at least promise action, which appeals to desperate people. Communism, will not, I think, ultimately triumph. There are too many of the older generation left, and the service men of the war, who really put down the Communists in 1919, are not likely to stand by.

I find that the Soviet ideal finds fewer followers among the educated and intelligent people than in America, where distance seems to lend some enchantment. Here they have had a taste of it, and they don't want it. In Wurzburg, I met an ex-officer, now a Ph.D. in chemistry, and employed by the state, who had been one of the party of returned soldiers that shelled the palace there and drove out the "Communist rabble" that had attempted to take over the city, and had mounted machine guns in the streets. Thirty men who had served at the front died in putting down the Communists in their own home city. He showed me the marks of the shell fire. In Heidelberg I met a woman whose oldest son served four years at the front and returned home after the Armistice to be killed in the streets by a Communist mob. And so the story goes. Desperately hungry people turning to the red flag for relief, and Hitler promising that Germany must not go Red.

Challenges Miss Brinton

I was amazed and amused to see Miss Brinton's statement (Mr. Schrepfer refers to a recent interview in these columns) that nobody takes the Hitler movement seriously. The plain facts are that in the last general election about forty per cent. of the people voted Hitlerite, while the other sixty per cent. was divided among about twenty other parties. We have no such situation with our two parties! But there are vast numbers of Germans who do take the movement seriously. The mistake made most frequently, I think, is to confuse the man Hitler with the movement.

The movement is anti-Jewish, which appeals to a people that believes that a small class of Jewish financiers, manufacturers and business men profited immensely from the war and then the inflation. It is nationalistic, which appeals to a people that has suffered incredibly for the nation's sake. It is disciplined in organization, which appeals to a people in whom the sense of order is approximately instinctive, and that has been trained in formal concepts. Above all, it is definitely provocative of action, which is the one thing that despairing people have left to them.

I do not pretend to know whether the Hitler movement can succeed, but as I look out of the window in my home here, I see the Hitler flag floating from the stack of the only factory in this town. When I go into the village, I see it floating from several houses and two of the inns. My baker wears the Hitler sign on the lapel of his working jacket; the lady from whom we rented this house was a Hitlerite; in the third class compartments of the trains, I see armbands and buttons on men and women. On the roads, troops of cyclists and groups of walkers, greet each other with the raised fist salute and "Heil, Hitler!" Of course, it is true that the movement is sectionally strong and weak, but this section is not regarded as his stronghold. The real Hitler strength is in the eastern and northern sections, in East Prussia and along the Polish Frontier. Hitler is not strong at the Adlon in Berlin, perhaps, but I incline to the belief that very many Germans take the movement seriously, even though they regard the man with no special affection.

But here I am, rambling along endlessly, when I had intended to write a friendly note to you and let it go at that. I have decided to study at Heidelberg this next year and am looking forward to some interesting work in the fields of Systematic Philosophy, Psychology, Esthetics and Pedagogy. For relaxation I will study anatomy and Italian. I want to spend a month in Italy in the spring, so I will need it, the Italian, I mean.

Read About Merger

I observe that the discussion on the Borough merger goes on. From the statistics, I again infer the well-known fact that one can do all sorts of things with figures, if one will only forget everything except the figures in hand. What is true statistically today, is usually the exception to the rule tomorrow. It is a fearful error to predicate assumptions of civic and sectional developments on the statistics of the area in question as they are at the time.

The whole argument for merging is based on the erroneous assumption that conditions and factors favorable to the merger will remain static. Many similar areas in other sections of the country have had similar problems. If it were true that the Main Line section were to remain as it is, and we could safely assume that a growing political unit with consequent large political opportunities for patronage and job holding, would remain in the hands of disinterested and for the most part affluent citizens of great ability, one might be tempted to listen to the siren voice of lower tax rates for this and next year. Unfortunately, this is as unlikely as it is that a barrel of money could be set up in the street, and nobody to watch, and nobody to take.

This epistle is much too long, so until the next time, Auf Wiedersehen.

Sincerely,

FRANK SCHREPFER.

Reading List Plan at Library Meets Success

The reading lists inaugurated at the Library in March at the suggestion of Robert M. Cameron, a member of the Board of Trustees, have proved to be a successful part of the institution's service. Now in the sixth month, the lists are consulted frequently as they are currently displayed and there are occasional requests for lists which have been published previously. To answer these demands copies of such lists as have appeared in "Our Town" are kept on file at the Library and the books listed will be found on the shelves.

The scope of the work, as directed by Mr. Cameron, is to include twelve subjects, one for each month in the year, with a representative group of books recommended for reading during each month. The books selected for this purpose are conspicuously displayed on one of the counter book cases at the entrance to the Library. The present list, which is receiving quite favorable attention, is on local history, and since October is the month for the commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of this State, and the 288th anniversary of William Penn's birth, it seems fitting that all residents of this community should inform themselves of the salient points of the early history of this location.

The reading lists already published in addition to the one on local history are, in the order of their appearance, "Plays and Players," "Government and Economics," "Novels You Meant to Read," "Biography," and "Creative Arts."

Plan Flower Show

The Penn Valley Garden Club held a meeting on Tuesday morning at the home of the president, Mrs. John A. Lafore, Penn Valley Farms, Narberth, when the plans were made for the Flower Show and Card Party for the members, which will be held on Tuesday, September 27. The card party is being given for the benefit of the sewing group who distribute garments in Kensington.

By ROBERT J. EDGAR

Fall flower shows!

But really only late summer.

Dahlias and zinnias are the leaders. Both very showy and either are very easy to grow—provided there is sufficient rain or artificial watering.

Dahlias are at their best in late September when the nights are cool and in a normal season the equinoctial rains usually fall some time during September.

Mildew disfigures foliage and is almost impossible to correct; it is likewise difficult to prevent. Mildew is a form of fungus caused by unusual atmospheric conditions, sudden change from moist to dry might describe it—this occurs in dry weather when the morning dews are unusually heavy and are followed by hot drying sun. Another way to bring mildew on foliage is by late evening watering, which has been described as putting the plants to sleep under wet blankets. Keeping foliage dusted with dusting sulphur, or any other good fungicide, will prevent mildew, but once it gets a start it is very difficult to eradicate. With normal rainfall, moist atmosphere and moist soil we would be little concerned with mildew—if we refrain from late evening soaking of foliage. Watering should be done sufficiently early to give the plants time to dry off before sundown.

Eupatorium coelestinum is a very fine late-flowering herbaceous perennial plant. While it is called "hardy ageratum," it is not related to the edging annual-ageratum, the flowers are similar in appearance, although eupatorium is the most satisfactory for cutting. Usually in fall flower shows some one exhibits eupatorium as ageratum and the judges are forced to disqualify the entry. Another reason for knowing the proper names of plants. Common names mean little and only cause confusion. Words of three or more syllables may be learned and pronounced by folks who are old enough to garden; small children may be excused.

In small local flower shows the committees have rather responsible duties in helping exhibitors in the proper entering and arranging of their exhibits. Exhibitors should be helped and encouraged to the limit. Many errors are found by judges when the prizes are to be awarded; not always the fault of the exhibitor, but very often because the committee members do not take sufficient time to see that the entries are properly placed. The count may be wrong, when a class calls for six flowers or six stems it means just six—no more and no less. When a class calls for an arrangement of annuals, it means all annuals, and not shrubs and perennials mixed with annuals. A flower on a strong stem with good foliage—and no side buds—is preferred over a short-stemmed flower; one with poor foliage or a stem with one or more unopened buds. In artistic arrangements the side buds are not so important, in fact, a stem as it is taken from the plant is probably more desirable than the perfect specimen offered as a specimen. Judges always look at the backs of dahlias to see that the flowers are fresh and perfect. Stems on dahlias mean a lot, flowers that turn their heads to the ground or have weak necks that allow the flower heads to droop are not desirable.

The flowers in fall shows are practically all annuals and tender bulbs or tubers; all may be planted or sown earlier the same season. It is the spring show, where practically all of the flowers are perennials, that taxes the skill of a gardener; here it is the work of the previous fall and of several years before that produces the flowers of spring. In the classes for artistic arrangements the exhibitors have some leeway, ordinarily the schedule allows them to use flowers not necessarily grown in their own garden; it is in the art of arranging the flowers and foliage in suitable containers that wins the prize. Funny how every lady-gardener thinks she has a special faculty for arranging flowers artistically. And as one who is sometimes called on to help pass judgment on their efforts, we agree with all of them—they are all good—there should be more prizes.

is a Sign of Progress

Last week you were promised something of interest.

Arrangements have been made for us to handle the complete line of BENJ. MOORE & CO.'S PAINTS AND VARNISHES. In their 40 years of making paint, the public has come to know them through their:

SANI-FLAT WALL PAINT—a very popular product

MURESCO, UTILAC ENAMEL and others

IMPERVO SPAR VARNISH with a bakelite base—one of the latest and best of Spar Varnishes. We could elaborate on all the other items on our shelves, but they have been manufacturing long enough to know that only worth-while paint will do. The Householder, Painter and Decorator can all find what they need in this assortment.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PAINT
HERE IS THE PLACE TO BUY IT

Look over this list and plan to do a real job of Fall cleaning and renovating. If you need advice on the selection of colors for interior or exterior, let us send the information to Moore's Art Department for their recommendations. No obligation to you. Ask for color cards and prices today.

ANOTHER SURPRISE: We rent the CLARKE SANDING MACHINE by the day for refinishing floors. Also supply Lingerwet, Double X or Kleen & Bleach, Shellac, Turpentine, Old English Wax and Floor Paint. Ladders may also be rented with each order of paint by those householders who like to roll up their sleeves and "go to it." Why not take advantage of this before your vacation is over?

Parking Problem Up Before Borough Fathers

while it was entirely legitimate for him to advocate the purely private interests of the bank, it was necessary for Council to consider the public interest as a whole. "You had better not carry that idea too far," replied Mr. Metzger. "The people of Narberth do not expect Council to regulate all their affairs and to tell them when to go to bed and when to get up. Business comes ahead of everything else." It was Mr. Wood's opinion that the Councilmen had been elected to look after the public interest and that it was obviously their duty to do so. He could not agree that business "comes first" and other Councilmen shared his view.

It was Councilman Hall who suggested which was adopted. He had observed that the greatest traffic congestion of the day takes place at that point in the late afternoon after the bank is closed. It was therefore decided that there would be no parking on the south side of the street at any time during the day; and that on the north side, next to the bank building, 15-minute public parking will be permitted up to four o'clock in the afternoon and from then until six P. M. no parking will be permitted on either side of the street. It was decided that a sign indicating those parking regulations would be painted and attached to the bank building and that the bank would pay the cost of the sign.

The only matter, outside of routine, which was decided at the meeting on Monday evening, was the approval of Councilman Hall's recommendation that two new street lights should be erected on the improved section of Haverford avenue. There are, at present, lights at the south ends of Conway and Dudley avenues. Two more street lights will be installed between Conway and Wynnewood avenues at locations to be determined by Mr. Hall. The complete report of the Highway Committee was as follows:

Routine work only engaged the activities of the Highway Department during the month of August. During that month we were able somewhat to reduce the working time of the laborers and thereby to save somewhat on the labor item in the budget, but not so much as we had expected earlier in the summer. Experience during the past month has demonstrated that normal and ordinary demands require practically all of the working time of the Borough labor force as it is now constituted.

The total expenditure for the month of August amounted to $685.22, of which the principal item was $381.34 for collecting 848 cubic yards of ashes and rubbish. Other important items were $43.83 for street maintenance; $51.66 for street cleaning and $73.54 for clearing out and relaying the storm sewer on Price avenue, where it was at first assumed that tree roots had blocked the sewer, but it was later discovered that the sewer at that point had not been properly constructed several years ago. That necessitated the purchase of new pipe and increased the cost more than had been originally expected.

During the month of August, a total of $193.50 was expended on materials, of which $45.10 was for street maintenance material; $111.90 was for new pipe for the Price avenue sewer and $29.25 was for material to re-lay and repair the intersection of Haverford avenue at Wynnewood to connect with the new work on Haverford recently installed by the County.

At the request of this Committee, Mr. Suplee has prepared an itemized report of all items of expense incurred by the Borough in connection with the construction of Haverford avenue, from Essex to Wynnewood. We are attaching that report herewith and making it a part of the Committee's report. There was a total of $548.38 for labor and $262.86 for material, making a total of $811.08. This is in addition to the $1300 which the Borough agreed to contribute to the County in connection with the original cost on the Haverford avenue work. All of those expenses grew out of comparatively small jobs which the construction of the street necessitated, but which actually were outside of the street itself. The largest item in the list, the installation of a 12-inch storm sewer on the north side of Haverford avenue, which cost $414.98, was authorized at the July meeting of Council.

An Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hopkinson-Evans, of Chimneyside, Radnor, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Gabrielle Hopkinson-Evans, and Mr. Frederic Schoff Boericke, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Boericke, of Merion.

The marriage will take place early next month.

Rare Qualities of Poise and Diplomacy Made Mrs. Benade a Successful Politician

By GEORGE A. WALKER

The hazards of political leadership have a tendency to exceed the enjoyments. For many it is a thankless profession. Yet it is probably the great power-commanding factor in American life today. Even big business, suffering from unemployment and curtailed revenue, finds it highly advantageous in these lean years of depression to fall back on the shoulders of legislators and sob long wails of helplessness in the ears of politicians. In more ways than one politics, right or wrong, has become the court of last resort.

But for the man or woman who embarks on a political career the road ahead in a long obstacle race. In addition, the mortality rate is appalling. At every turn in the road on election day we find a collection of "has-beens" who have fallen by the wayside. The may succumb to premature ambitions or immature ability. Others are sacrificed for the political attainments and retention of power that still rests safely in the hands of those in command. Good and bad alike are among the fallen.

These maneuvers, attended by such a scramble for position and power, demands the exercise of a delicate, deliberate and experienced technique. Let those who fail to comprehend scoff at the mental proclivities of the politically inclined. Often in the American scene we have witnessed one of the wealthy and prominent become smitten with political desires, only to dissipate his fortune and good standing in an attempt to win recognition at the polls. This should be proof sufficient of the qualifications necessary to politics.

Mrs. Theodore E. Benade, of Cynwyd, whose death occurred last week, well deserved the name of political leader. In her corner of the world, which was Lower Merion Township, she maintained an undisputed control over a working majority of Republican organization votes. At the same time she preserved the vital relationships with other township, county and State leaders to further the needs, necessities and ambitions of her constituents. There was a harmony here—between her ability to obtain votes and her power to compensate voters—approached perfection. An all-important consideration for any political practitioner that sets about seriously to pile up majorities on election days.

When it comes to an intelligent and independent expression of suffrage women have not demonstrated any exceptional franchise tendencies. Many have even exhibited greater sheep-like characteristics for blind-voting than men. But a woman of Mrs. Benade's rare endowments transcends the mere expression of the female franchise. Her suffrage consists in claiming and retaining political leadership. Outside of circles of trusted friends few people are familiar with the responsibilities that are entrusted to political leaders. Political manipulations can never be advantageously revealed to public scrutiny. There are too many intricate trade secrets. Even publicity for political accomplishments is often tabooed, in so far as such information applies to internal campaign strategy and the efforts of dependable wheelhorses in the inner circumference of a political organization. Thus it is quite natural that much of Mrs. Benade's organization work was conceived and undertaken in a quiet and unsung manner. For as Mrs. Benade would certainly have told you herself it is not the showy things that count in politics. It is effort silently expended in the highways and byways. It is a matter of encouraging some and discouraging others; eliminating prospective candidates or tutoring others on whom the political light is predestined to shine; settling differences between contending inter-party factions; pacifying vociferous henchmen; patching up misunderstandings between major chieftains; dispensing patronage and favors; promising most everything and doing the best you can; alternately squelching and boosting movements; nursing a grievous injury and blandly smiling at the same time; persuading the vote and getting it out and a thousand other trials and troubles.

Mrs. Benade was intimately familiar with such things. Through the maze of such obligations she seemed to possess the happy faculty of finding the direct path of attainment. Her poise, strategy and diplomacy was a matter of admiration for her friends and a matter of annoyance for her opponents. For many county and State leaders Mrs. Benade was a wise counselor and a worth friend to stand by in any fight. She was respectfully feared, admired, revered and beloved. Her maternal persuasion and feminine touch were counter-balanced by masculine strength of heart and severity when the occasion demanded. She could be either a great friend or an indefatigable adversary. That was her power. That was Mrs. Benade.

Paralysis Continues to Keep Schools Closed

nolds, however, indicated that as far as Lower Merion Township was concerned there had been a very favorable drop in the number of cases reported.

When conditions warrant a special meeting of the Lower Merion Board of Health will be called to consider the question of permitting the schools to open. When such action is taken by the Board of Health Lower Merion public schools will be automatically ordered opened by S. Edgar Downs, superintendent of schools, without a special meeting of the Township School Board.

Warns Against "Gangs"

A warning has been issued by Dr. George A. Sloan, president of the Narberth Board of Health, against children congregating in large groups throughout the Borough. Dr. Sloan has observed that the closing of schools and other means of assembly has encouraged the younger generation to form gangs as a substitute form of amusement. This, Dr. Sloan said, was defeating the purpose of the Borough Board of Health to prevent spread of infantile paralysis.

Many of the private schools of the Main Line, whose opening dates are scheduled in the latter part of September, were considering the necessity of setting these dates ahead until abatement of the disease.

TYSON—STACKHOUSE

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at the country home of Mr. Warren R. Tyson, of Haverford avenue, Narberth, at Wycombe, Pa., when Miss Alice R. Stackhouse, daughter of Mrs. Jane Stackhouse, of Atlantic City, was married to his brother, Mr. Earle Tyson. The Rev. Avery S. Demmy, of Narberth, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and a long tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Warren R. Tyson, who acted as matron of honor, wore a gown of white crepe. Her bouquet was of pink roses and purple and white asters. Miss June Tyson was lady-in-waiting to the bride. Mr. Warren R. Tyson acted as best man for his brother. Mr. Louis H. Frank played the wedding march.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. Tyson and his bride will reside at "Hastings Manor," Overbrook, Pa.

Food and Clothing Are Increasing Through Barrels

With a steadily growing reserve of non-perishable foodstuffs for winter needs, the Barrel Campaign division of the Main Line Emergency Committee is elated at the success of the plan to date. Over 7500 articles of food have been placed in the barrels, it was announced yesterday by Lester S. Lamb, chairman of the group.

In addition a great array of clothing has been collected and distributed. Not only have shoes and wearing apparel been contributed in generous measure, but a growing collection of white dress ties and white gloves are presenting a problem to the women's committee handling the sorting. "The unemployed are not wearing full dress very often," was remarked by an onlooker, "but it may be a sign of better times to come." The most interesting exhibit to date is a can of malt syrup.

Mild Paralysis Cases Common; Watch Symptoms

Probably a large percentage of adults have had a mild form of infantile paralysis at some time in their lives, according to Dr. John A. Kolmer, of Cynwyd. In addressing a meeting at Temple University Hospital, Philadelphia, Dr. Kolmer, who is consultant to the Lower Merion Board of Health, said that parents should not delay in calling a physician for every child that has symptoms consisting of fever, upset stomach, slight pain and mild sore throat.

Borough Office an Information Bureau

easy matter to have the answers to that always available. Another question, almost as frequently asked, is "Can you tell me when the next train leaves for the city?" Of course, the Borough office is equipped with a time table, although there are probably few residents of Narberth who take day-time trains to town as infrequently as Mrs. Grace and Mr. Suplee.

Slightly more unusual, but asked more than once, are inquiries for a good dentist or a good physician or barber or hair-dresser. Those questions also are answered on the basis of good judgment with no attempt to play favorites. It is regrettable to be obliged to record also that the office has been asked, "What is good to get rid of roaches?" but those noxious insects will invade the best homes, and it is not beyond the experience of the Borough office to know what to do about it.

"Are there any houses for rent in Narberth for (sum specified) a month?" That question seldom can be answered, for the office cannot operate a real-estate listing agency, but it is possible to refer those inquiries to the real estate offices. Questions regarding the ash, rubbish and garbage collections are, of course, frequent, and a part of what might be termed the official duties of the office. Some citizens who have learned that Councilman Hall, as chairman of the Water, Light and Health Committee, has something to do with garbage collections have evidently inferred that he is the "garbage gentleman," for it is not unusual for a woman's voice to say over the telephone, "Please ask Mr. Hall to collect my garbage more regularly."

Some one telephoned in a while ago and wanted to know "what salary Mr. Noel receives as janitor of the fire house?" Mr. Noel is, of course, the chief of the fire department, which position he capably fills without salary and at frequent expense out of his own pocket. Questions regarding the salaries of other Borough officials are also asked occasionally and are cheerfully answered, for it is recognized that the public is entitled to know the hire of its own servants.

The Borough office is open daily from 8 A. M. to noon and from 1 P. M. to 5 P. M., except on Saturdays, when it is closed at noon. Mrs. Grace is always there during those hours, but Mr. Suplee is more frequently outside in connection with his regular duties, which take him all over the Borough and occasionally outside. The telephone number is Narberth 2840 and calls from the public, by telephone or personally, are welcomed. If the office does not have the information that is desired, every effort will be made to obtain it. One of the Councilmen, to whom this service was recently revealed, said that if the budget were not so scanty this year, he should advocate having a small card printed, to be supplied promptly to all new residents, giving the address and telephone number of the Borough office and offering its services to assist newcomers to get themselves oriented in the community.

"Enforcement Allies" Pick Scoville for Legislature

Bone dries of Lower Merion and Narberth will have a spokesman in the Legislature next year if success crowns the political campaign of the "Enforcement Allies" party. Samuel Scoville, Jr., of Haverford, was chosen to run in the First Legislative District by the group who pre-empted this party name last week.

Mr. Scoville is a Philadelphia attorney, a well-known lecturer and a prolific writer. Numerous magazine articles on nature topics have come from his facile pen and an imposing array of books on nature and children's topics stand in his name.

The "Enforcement Allies" have selected Francis R. Taylor, of Cheltenham, to run for Congress. The dries will have plenty of material to choose from this fall, for in addition to the "Allies" the ballots will also honor the "United Dries" and the regular Prohibition party.

Motor Inspections Lag

With but two weeks remaining for motor vehicle owners to comply with the law requiring inspection of their cars, only about one-half of the registered vehicles in the State have been inspected, according to figures obtained by the Keystone Automobile Club from the Department of Revenue.

Joseph R. Murphy, manager of the Main Line Division of the Club, said that of the 1,642,999 motor vehicles registered as of September 1, approximately 750,000 have been inspected and approved in the period July 1 to September 12.

Narberth Drops One to Bacharach Giants

The natural let-down of a club which has stamped through the final weeks of a torrid pennant scrap was in evidence as the home tossers went about their work in carefree fashion. We imagine that the five errors charged to them should serve as mute testimony on that score. The usual pep and dash was missing, even the fans were reasonable in their demands on their favorites, and the result was a whipping which left no serious sore marks on the locals' prestige.

Bacharach didn't believe in starting the day with a goose egg and promptly tallied one run in its first and then another in the fourth, after which the loop first-half champs tied it up by garnering a brace of pointers.

Here was the makings of a real struggle, but nobody was excited unduly over the possibilities, and when Bacharach tallied two to break the stalemate no excitement would have resulted had not a play figured that failed to meet the standards of what the home fans like.

In short, a decision by the umpire caused quite a stir when Wiggins rapped a single and Sam Warmack, murderous-hitting Bacharach center fielder, sledged a home run to right field which wrapped itself around the giant tree near the scoreboard.

The ump said, "Fair ball." The fans in chorus as well as the Borough players ruled loudly "Foul ball." But you know as well as we do who won the argument. Regardless of opinion the play went as seen by the arbiter and the added two runs by the Bacharach aggregation in the seventh and ninth were only extra snow in a milk high drift. They made no difference whatever.

Gene Davis gave Frank Coleman, his new right hander, a workout and the former Bartram-Artisans' slasher was touched for 12 hits, the most painful being the homer by Warmack and a triple by the same pegger. Allen went the route for the invading nine and allowed the town boys six bingles, one a two-bagger credited to Howdy Powell.

Charley Carroll carried the torch for Narberth with two hits, while Bridges, Warmack, Lackey, Cockrell and Gomes shared honors for the Giants with two apiece.

Community Club Meets to Plan Fall Program

The Board of Directors of the Women's Community Club of Narberth held a meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Joseph A. Hongler, on Merion avenue, on Tuesday morning to discuss plans for the coming year. Mrs. H. F. Stevens, of Haverford, was appointed chairman for the coming Red Cross Drive. It was also decided to publish a year book instead of the regular monthly program.

A meeting of the chairmen of the various departments of the club was also held on Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Hongler, when each of the chairmen outlined the work for the ensuing year. Last Thursday morning a meeting of the Finance Committee was held at the home of the president, when budgets were made for the year.

The first meeting of the Club will be held on October 4 and the Reciprocity Luncheon will be held on October 18. Full details will be announced later.

"What Price Hollywood" is Now at the Egyptian

Constance Bennett has an interesting and timely plot in "What Price Hollywood?" at the Egyptian Theatre this Friday and Saturday nights. Recommended as good entertainment.

Ben Lyon and Barbara Weeks help merit their stardom in "By Whose Hand?"—as dramatic as its title; due at Cynwyd next Monday and Tuesday.

"Is My Face Red?" is an exciting and diverting tale of a newspaper columnist, whose name could be Winchell. Ricardo Cortez and Helen Twelvetrees are in this film, coming Wednesday and Thursday.

Clive Brook and Claudette Colbert in "The Man From Yesterday" will be the Egyptian's feature next weekend.

Announced for early showings at the Egyptian are: "Red Headed Woman," "Million Dollar Legs," "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and "Washington Masquerade."

BUSINESS BITS

Good Work, Low Prices Mark Boro School Jobs

Local business people were given work this summer by the Narberth School Board, making the usual improvements and repairs on the schools at Essex and Sabine avenues. Exterior painting was done by H. J. Moseller, of 217 Havreford avenue; interior painting by Squire Fred Walzer; slate roof work and repairing of gutters by Harvey Cook; plastering by Fratantoni and Sons, and carpentering by B. H. Bowman.

"The schools are now in better condition than any time since they were built," Dr. Leroy A. King declared this week. "The work, which was completed before Labor Day, was awarded on the basis of competitive bids, at very satisfactorily low cost."

President I. W. Merrill, of the Bradley Market Company, is on a fortnight's vacation motor trip with Mrs. Merrill. He visited last week his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Tatum, Nutley, N. J. With the Tatums, the Merrills are motoring through several States and go on the 19th to Pittsburgh, where Horace Tatum, Jr., will enter Carnegie Tech.

Mr. Merrill, who has many friends here, is one of this paper's most consistent advertisers. The Bradley Market trucks are seen in this section twice daily, bringing "service as near as your telephone" from 2106-08 Market street, where the market carries on its tradition of half a century of square dealing and fine meats.

Signs of quickening activity became evident in Narberth's business section this week. Business people in general are preparing for a resumption of trade, now that vacations are over and cool weather promises an end to summer's abnormally prolonged dull period.

White's Sweet Shop offers a birthday special, consisting of ice cream, cake, mints and nuts for a party, at a combined price that means a real saving.

The Narberth Hand Laundry, on Narberth avenue, near the theatre, continues increasing its trade, and offers a new special in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

Food markets in the Borough are planning greater sales and advertising efforts than in recent years, in the belief that Narberth householders can be convinced of these facts: co-operative buying enables independent stores to give better values than obtainable in chain stores, and in markets of other nearby communities. In addition, it is pointed out, residents here can count on dependable neighborhood service and foods carefully selected for quality. More will be said about this next week.

Guild to Meet Wednesday

The first meeting of the season of the Narberth Branch of the Needlework Guild of America will be held on Wednesday, September 21, from ten until four, at the home of the president, Mrs. A. H. Durboraw, 125 Elmwood avenue. A full attendance of members is desired.

Waldron Academy to Open

The Waldron Academy for Boys will reopen for boarders on October 2, and for day pupils on October 3, unless the Board of Health set a later date.

Campaign for Congress Under Way in County

A. Hart and William B. Kerigan, of Bryn Mawr.

At about the time Mr. Pendleton was addressing the Penlyn meeting, his opponent, J. William Ditter, the Republican choice for Congress, was telling the Montgomery-Bucks Newspaper Association his views on Prohibition. Mr. Ditter's stand agrees in most particulars with the opinions of President Hoover. He is convinced that the Amendment is unpopular, and should be submitted to the States for Repeal.

When asked his views on the immediate modification of the Volstead Act he replied that revenue should be a prime consideration in any such move. He is a believer in State option in liquor questions and shies at any change in legislation prior to the repeal of the Amendment, which might lead to nullification.

Adding to the news of the week, Senator James S. Boyd announced his return to the Old Homestead. In short, Mr. Boyd will cease his opposition to Charles Johnson, the County leader, and will devote his efforts to the election of the full Republican ticket.

In his statement he credited his defection, in which he took two round likings, with the wet stand now taken by the County Republicans. After admitting that Johnson can defeat any attempt at new leadership, he promised to take himself and the votes he controls, back into the organization camp.

In short, the campaign is under way.
